REPO Service

In accordance with the present terms and conditions which regulate the provision of Repo transaction services the Client gives his/her express consent to the use of all available, unutilized and unblocked financial instruments maintained on the Client's Brokerage Account for the purpose of generating additional income on such available, unutilized and unblocked financial instruments held. Repos are typically short-term transactions—usually overnight—but they can extend out as far as two years. They enable the sellers of the securities to earn short-term interest on their funds. In effect, the securities function as collateral for short-term loans.

As a secured form of financing, repos offer market participants more favorable terms than traditional money market cash lending transactions. Reverse repurchase agreements may be used to earn income on their excess cash reserves. When securities are sold, the sellers simultaneously agree to repurchase the securities on a specified day at a given price, including interest calculated using a rate agreed upon at the time the sale takes place. The portion of the repo transaction when the security is sold is referred to as the "start" leg, while the subsequent repurchase is called the "close" leg.

Withdrawal

When financial instruments utilized for execution of REPO transactions are needed back in the Client's Brokerage Account the Company will undertake all necessary steps to withdraw concerned financial instruments from REPO and transfer them back to the Client's Brokerage Account without any delay.

Generated profit

All REPO transactions performed by the Company with the Client's financial instruments will be recorded on the Client's Brokerage Account. Profit generated from execution of REPO transactions will be marked accordingly.

Reporting

All movements on the Client's Brokerage Account with regard to the financial instruments transferred under execution of REPO transactions service including information on income generated will be recorded and reported to the Client in regular reports. Frequency and content of reports is governed by the present Regulations.

Closing of Account

The Company reserves the right to terminate provision of the service. In that case all securities transferred for execution of REPO transactions will be returned to the Client's Brokerage Account together with income generated.

In case the Client decides to close his/her Brokerage Account, the Company shall undertake all necessary measures to return securities transferred for execution of REPO transactions to the Client's Brokerage Account together with income generated.

Credit risk

While classic REPOs are generally credit-risk mitigated instruments, there are residual credit risks. The seller may fail to repurchase the securities sold, at the maturity date. Consequently, the buyer may keep the security, and liquidate the security to recover the cash lent. The security, however, may have lost value since the outset of the transaction as the security is subject to market movements. Occasionally, a party involved in a REPO transaction may not have a specific bond at the end of the REPO contract. This may cause a string of failures from one party to the next, for as long as different parties have transacted for the same underlying instrument. Credit risk associated with REPO is subject to many factors: term of REPO, liquidity of security, the strength of the counterparties involved, etc.

Rights and obligations

The Company shall bear no responsibility before the Client for any actions, inactions or omissions of a third party and also for any losses incurred by the Client in a result of actions, inactions or omissions of a third party unless such losses directly arises from the Company's willful default or fraud or gross negligence. The Company shall also bear no responsibility or liability for unfavorable consequences for the Client due to the insolvency/bankruptcy of a third party.

Client's consent

The Client hereby confirms that before entering into the Brokerage Agreement he/she has carefully studied and fully agrees with terms and conditions of the Regulations for provision of brokerage, investment and agency services on the securities market which will also govern the execution of REPO transactions service.
